By plane to one of the three airports serving Milan:

The airport closest to the city center is Milano Linate (by 'Metro' it takes 12' to the stop San Babila, just behind Piazza Duomo). To reach the Conference location then you have to change the line to go to the train station Milano Garibaldi and take the train to Milano Politecnico-Bovisa. Several airline companies are based at Linate.

The airport closest to the station Bovisa-Politecnico is Milano Malpensa (easyjet), with a direct train to the station Bovisa-Politecnico (it's called Malpensa Express) that take 30'-35'. It is advisable particularly when you leave, to shorten times.

Milano Bergamo (Ryanair) can be cheaper but is further away, you have to take the shuttle bus to Milano Centrale station (it takes 1h 10') and then the train to Milano Bovisa-Politecnico. It is advisable if you have time to spend, perhaps if you come already on Friday or Saturday, or if you have really good flight opportunities.
