

Trademarks in Patents: From Keywords to AI

Simona Venturini, SVIPSEARCH; Davide Russo, University of Bergamo

Abstract

This presentation reports the results of an experiment in searching for trademarks within patent documents, comparing AI-assisted and traditional query-based methods. Identifying trademarks can help connect patented technologies with commercial products and provide valuable business and competitive intelligence. The respective strengths and limitations of both search approaches are assessed across different scenarios.